FARMERS TO GIVE DANCE

First Time "Ag" School Function Has Not Been Exclusive.

A dance, open to all students of the University, will be given by the Ag Club on Friday night, February 17, at Columbia Hall in honor of the live stock, dairy and poultry judging teams. The profit derived from the dance is to go toward helping defray the expenses of the thirteen men on these teams.

Sufficient funds for the expenses of the judging teams have never been provided, and these men have heretofore been paying a large part of their expenses. Their only compensation has been medals, which have been presented by the Ag Club. This is the first time the Ag Club has given a dance which is open to the student body.

The committee in charge of arrangements is composed of: C. A. Mosser, Pruet Turner and Charles Lawrence.

A. M. Bailey a Loyal Tiger.

A. M. Bailey, of Hutchinson, Kan., who was a student at the University in 1916-17, remains true to the Tiger spirit. In a letter to The Evening Missourian he gives the following as reason for his renewed subscription: "Although now very few names that I recognize ever appear in the sheet, I am interested to be back in the home of the Tiger when the opening gong rings for the fall term of '22 so I needs must keep in touch. I am always running foul of members of the K. U. clan out here in the Jayhawk state, so there is always a chance for an argument. Following the pigskin classic on November 24, I was at a decided disadvantage, but the Tiger is now switching his tail with a vengeance and it is my turn to crow."

Will Teach at Lindenwood College.

Miss Cynthia Starr, who has been an instructor at the University, began her duties yesterday to teach French and Spanish at Lindenwood College. She succeeds Miss Ethel Sykes of Columbia, who is soon to be married.

READING CHARACTER BY EARS IS LATEST PRACTICAL SCIENCE

The poor hunted male now has another means of protecting himself from designing Eves, if he but listens to the latest authority on character judging.

The young swain must no longer go awailing with a box of chocolates or a bunch of violets in his hand. He need no longer sink back luxuriously in the easy chair, sigh complacently after eating a delicious meal "prepared just for him," and then squirm uneasily when the unhappy thought that perhaps her mother cooked it after all, occurs to him.

All he need do is to arm himself with "How to Read Character by the Ears," go to call upon his sweetheart, and mentally place her in one of the five classes which the book includes. That is, of course, providing he can get a look at her ears.

Boyd W. Anderson, of Venice, Cal., who says that he spent fifteen years in the study of the classification of human beings by their head adornments, says that a man's character can be told by his ears. More than this he says that ears which fall into five natural and distinct classes can be identified and classified at a distance, and that the method is superior to the finger print process because of its ease and quickness.

Besides being an aid to suitors, Anderson says that his method of judging character will be a great help in the detection of criminals. With a general description of a man and a description of his ears he says a detective or a policeman has little chance of missing the man he is in search of.

Another point made by Mr. Anderson is the fact that his system will be of material aid to men in all occupations who are forced to come into daily contact with people and who need a simple method of judging character.

You may not have time to get the impressions of a man's finger tips. His handshake may be weak because of a recent illness or great nervous strain, but take off his hat, look at his ears and there his true character is revealed.

If the cook insists upon calling you by your first name, if she leaves unexpectedly when company arrives, catch her unawares some day and look at her ears. You may be harboring a genius with him.

less possibilities in your kitchen, or at the worst she may be a diamond in the rough who, with a little polishing will develop into a pasty maker of no mean ability.

So look to your ears! The day may come when data regarding your ears will be required on all questionnaires. At any rate, find out in which of the five classes your ears place you, so that you will be spared embarrassing disclosures when some kind friend attempts to classify you according to the new method!

Has Article in School Paper.

In a recent issue of School and Community there is an article by Miss Arretta Watts, a former student of the School of Journalism. She is a teacher in the English department of the Long Beach High School, Long Beach, Cal. The article is under the head, "Selling the School to the Community." She tells of an experiment which she carried out successfully with the twenty students in her journalism classes.

Law Fraternity Holds Mock Trial.

The Delta Theta Phi law fraternity, 715 Missouri avenue, held a mock trial Tuesday night. The case was an appeal in which a contract had been given for the sale of land to be executed at future date. Before execution, fire destroyed the buildings on the land. The question was to decide whether the plaintiff could make the defendant buy the land. J. N. Franklin and Herbert Gall were attorneys for the defense and F. T. Armstrong and Charles F. Henson for the plaintiff's side. Prof. Stephen J. Langmaid, J. P. Davies and J. B. Breckinridge were the judges.
